Dear Herman:

You sound so plaintive! It's unnerving; it's not like you. I will be delighted to relieve your loneliness, as soon as I get the chance. Meanwhile, don't do anything desperate. I don't have any immediate plans to be in that vicinity, but it's possible that I will be in the East toward the end of the summer.

Thank you for sending the index. I'm having a lot of fun with it, looking things up. (It's like discovering the RAND Bomb Damage Computer).

I see that you are even too depressed, or too chicken, to put the final y on Harmon. Cheer up! And remember me to the Kaplans, the Singers and Jane. I hope I will see you before too long.

Yours,

Daniel Ellsberg
